

AVIATION OPEN HOUSE 2011 ATTRACTS OVER 11,000 VISITORS

More than 11,000 aviation enthusiasts, students, industry professionals and members of the public flocked to D'Marquee at Downtown East for the Aviation Open House 2011 from 3 to 5 November. Organised by the Civil Aviation Authority of Singapore, the event featured exhibits and career talks by 45 world-class aviation companies, such as ST Aerospace, Pratt and Whitney and Rolls-Royce, as well as institutes of higher learning and other private institutions such as the Air Transport Training College, Massey University School of Aviation and Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University Asia.

Visitors also experienced the buzz of aviation through an exhibition, career talks, site visits, showcases, interactive games, as well as simulators, kite-flying and aeromodelling demonstrations. To commemorate the 100th year of aviation in Singapore, the event also featured a special Aviation Centennial Showcase highlighting Singapore's achievements in the sector over the past century and the vital role that aviation plays in our economy today.

held at D'Marquee, Downtown East from 3 to 5 November 2011.

Transport, and Yap Ong Heng, Director-General, CAAS launches Aviation Open House 2011.

Josephine Teo and Yap Ong Heng with the Youth Aviation Ambassadors.

Josephine Teo tries out the flight simulator at D'Tent.

Josephine Teo at the Singapore Polytechnic booth.

Students milling about the exhibition ground at the Aviation Open House 2011.

Win some prizes at the game booths!

Listen to the experts from the industry share about their personal experiences in building a successful career in aviation at the various career talks.

Catch a photo opportunity with the Singapore Airshow mascot, Captain Leo. stage.

Take part in the drone flying challenge at the main stage.

Students on a site visit to Eurocopter South East Asia.

The Singapore Aviation Centennial exhibition at the Aviation Open House. Learning about the various achievements of our aviation history through an interactive iPad display and centennial tribute videos. The winning entries of the Aviation Inspirations photography competition were also on display.

