INFORMATION SHARING KEY TO EFFECTIVE AVIATION SECURITY

As a testament to Singapore's support for international cooperation to effectively address emerging security risks, the Singapore Aviation Academy partnered the European Civil Aviation Conference for the 3rd Europe-Asia Pacific Aviation Security Forum to encourage information-sharing among various nations and regions.

From 22 to 24 June, aviation security experts from Europe and Asia Pacific discussed global trends, developments and challenges in civil aviation security and shared their experiences in maintaining the safety of air travellers.

Perspectives of regulators and industry players were both represented in discussions on various pertinent issues like the application of new security technologies, the different security issues faced by the air cargo industry and new aviation security challenges from the perspectives of various parties such as airports, regulators, pilots, airlines and aircraft manufacturers.

Forum participants also had the chance to tour the Certis CISCO training academy, which offered visitors a closer look at how Singapore stays vigilant today when aviation has become an integral part of life.
